A quieter theme.

The space and type of a plain document, without the repository chrome.

Layout

One idea, then the next

A slide is a title, a short rule, and a few lines.

- Keep the title short enough to say aloud.
- Use a list or a paragraph, not a pile of both.
- Secondary text stays gray, so the title does the work.

What the page is for

On the slide

White field, large type, and one dark rule. The name of the talk and a page number are the only running text.

Badges, monospace labels, terminal frames, and status colors. They make a talk look like a dashboard.

A slide should read like a sentence,
not a status page.

Thank you.
